

The British Adhesives and Sealants Association

THE VOICE OF THE ADHESIVES AND SEALANTS INDUSTRY IN UK & IRELAND

Join the association and become a member today!
Together we can shape the industry.

BASA is an unincorporated Trade Association formed in 1983 from the marriage of two long established associations, the British Adhesives Manufacturers Association and the Sealant Manufacturers Conference. Set up to act as the voice for the industry, BASA supports its members by representing and promoting the industry, offering guidance on technical and compliance issues, organising networking opportunities for members, and providing members with support services.

In addition to promoting the interest of industry, BASA's aim is to raise technical standards to assist members and customers in the selection of products appropriate for specific applications. To this end BASA works very closely with the British Standards Institute (BSI) to set and monitor high standards.

Undeniably BASA's main strength lies in its technical working parties which evaluate product performance, set industry guidelines, and formulate codes of practice. Information gathered by working groups often provides useful materials for leaflets or papers given to conference.

BASA supports the vision of FEICA, the Association of the European Adhesive & Sealant Industry, that the adhesive and sealant industry is committed to enabling a growing population to live a better life and to use the planet's resources responsibly and efficiently.

In light of the transition to a circular economy, BASA supports efforts to improve product efficiency and circularity to help create a more sustainable society, promoting the concepts of energy saving, material efficiency, repairability, durability and recycling. We will encourage members to continue developing solutions for energy efficiency, to enable the efficient use of raw materials and to continue to safeguard the environment and people's health.
